

THE LANTERN

Ohio State's Student-Lead Paper

presentation by Colette Murphy

Themes/Patterns

- Ohio State University is in an unstable position this semester- their student reporters have been reporting about things like misuse of position, ties with Epstein, a local shooting, and an assault charge on campus
- They write about their surrounding town of Columbus
- Even when they don't have all of the information updated, they admit to that and still post the article

Why their reports resonate with me

- As an English major seeing such a big paper with its own website and up to date news is important!
- Having all of these different sections is quite moving, especially in an age where newspaper feels like a lost art.

Quality of Reporting

- I've noticed how they always go back and add more information within one to three days
- They have a lot of nut graph in each report but no lead to pull their audience in
- They have an intriguing angle in every post since Columbus is a pretty busy city and Ohio State is a bigger university
- There's no sugar coating in their reporting

Reports I found Intriguing

- Les Wexner Named as Epstein Co-Conspirator by FBI in Newly Unredacted Files
- Will Les Wexner's Name Be Removed From Ohio State? Here is What University Policy Says.

Reports I found Intriguing (cont.)

- Temporary Protection Order Granted Against Ohio State Professor Charged With Assault
- (Here's the video: <https://t.co/IJfeaFhXX4>)