

NYU joins task force to address safety concerns in Washington Square Park

<https://nyunews.com/news/2025/03/21/washington-square-park-task-force/>

This article is about how NYU has joined a coalition of local lawmakers, businesses, and nonprofits in the Village Interagency Task Force to improve safety in Washington Square Park by addressing drug use, homelessness, and mental health issues. NYU supports the effort, emphasizing the need for comprehensive, coordinated solutions beyond what individual agencies can provide. The initiative responds to concerns over safety and homelessness in the West Village, with community leaders praising the city's commitment to addressing these issues. This article was great about diving deeper into what happens behind the scenes at NYU and what students are taking part in.

'Just like another wrestling match': Benny Bautista's fight against brain cancer

Benny Bautista, a senior at NYU and captain of the wrestling team, faced a life-altering challenge when he was diagnosed with grade 3 oligodendroglioma, a rare and malignant brain tumor, after experiencing a seizure in the summer before his final year. Known for his resilient "take life one day at a time" attitude. Despite the diagnosis, he continues to lead his team by example, embodying strength and optimism that inspire his teammates and the broader NYU community. His wrestling team, friends, and the NYU community have rallied around him, raising significant support through fundraising efforts. Looking ahead, Bautista plans to graduate with a degree in real estate and business before starting chemotherapy, determined to approach this battle like a wrestling match—with unwavering determination and positivity. This was an amazing article that highlighted an inspiring person.
