

I really loved doing this project. I loved being able to highlight someone I found important that works at U.N.E. My experience as a writer during this project was great, i did have some struggles, like trying to come up with good questions to get good answers was something i worked on, steering away from academic writing which was hard because that is the only way I've been taught to write but it showed great growth in the my writing. Editing isn't something I've always been good at, I'm not the best with grammar but i think getting critiques from my peers really helped my editing process to see if i missed a coma or a period in some of my sentences. That was great experience to have peers help me with my mistakes i did it catch. I also was able to go back through my article and keep in my some of the critiques i got to make my article better. Overall I had a great learning experience with this project.
