Welcome back folks, to continue our special behind the scenes look at what went into bringing Larry the lobster's adventures to life, we have brought in the crustacean specialist who managed the star himself! So, please tell us a little about yourself

Hello everyone, I am an animal behaviorist by trade specializing in lobster cognition and behavior! I basically served as Larry's manager on set, ensuring he was happy and comfortable, making sure all ethical guidelines were followed, and serving as a resource for the directors to make sure his behavior was as accurate to real lobsters as possible!

How did you get into this sort of profession?

That's a great question, i personally went to the University of New England where I got my bachelor's degree in animal behavior! There i learned a lot about how behavioral research is conducted in both humans and animals, and how we can use this knowledge to better our understanding of the world around us!

That's super interesting, but I must ask, if your major mostly addresses broad behavioral research, how did you become a lobster specialist specifically?

During my time there I was offered classes focusing on specific kinds of animals, crustaceans being one of them, and i loved it so much i joined a research team and have eventually become an expert in my field!
